Dear City Council Member McGovern,

Thank you for getting back to me; you are actually the only City Council member who has done so thus far. Is there a reason that the order is not being made public if it is already under discussion among city council members and is going to be voted on at the upcoming meeting?

Don't Cambridge residents have a right to know what is coming before its city council especially if council members are already able to discuss the intent and purpose of the order? As a Cambridge resident, it is unsettling to me that members of City Council seem to be contributing to the lack of transparency surrounding an order that from what I have been able to glean unfairly targets Israel with the main purpose of demonizing the country but couches this main purpose in larger human rights issues via Hewlett Packard. As someone who cares deeply about human rights and who works in the Jewish community in Boston, I can tell you it would hugely alienate me to feel that the city in which I live supports a boycott such as the one being proposed, whatever the language may be.

Cambridge is a great city that I am proud to call home. We get a lot of things right and I hope we continue to do so!

Thank you for your time and consideration on this matter and I am pleased to hear that you are not a sponsor of this order.
Sincerely,
Dara

Dear City Council Member Marc C. McGovern,

I respectfully oppose the lack of transparency and unfair singling out of Israel in this City Council Vote. As someone who is concerned about the city we live in and its public image, this resolution will have implications beyond Hewlett-Packard and, if adopted, would tarnish the reputation of our city.

The Cambridge City Council should not abdicate its responsibilities to an interest group whose purpose is to demonize Israel. Any resolution of this kind deserves a full and fair public hearing, including inviting experts and interested parties to weigh in openly before action is taken.

Singling out Israel and HP, amongst all the nations, companies and conflicts in the world, and holding them to a unique ethical standard raises troubling issues about the Cambridge City Council. Thousands of American companies that are working overseas and engaged in transactions that can be tied to questionable human rights practices; including numerous companies with Cambridge contacts.

In this instance, the Council is overlooking scores of other situations and electing to support dubious and largely unexamined claims against Israel made by an outside organization. If the Cambridge City Council elected to adopt a foreign policy that it applied without prejudice to nations and companies around the world, the issue of an ethical double standard would not be raised.

The BDS movement is detrimental to achieving peace. The establishment of a Palestinian state is a goal we share but will not be realized by extreme and deceptive claims that belie the hard reality on the ground. There are many people of goodwill, who are working to bridge the divide between Israelis and Palestinians. Boycotts, like the one under consideration, undermine these peacemakers, fuel polarization, and strengthen the hands of those who reject co-existence.
